

ADELL EROZER

Executive Director

Turning Points

Ms. Erozer started her career in health services, working for Planned Parenthood of Walla Walla, Washington as a Community Educator and then as Executive Director for five years. She planned to take a 6 month round the world trip, but instead ended up living outside the US for seventeen years, returning in 2002 when her husband retired from the United Nations. They settled in Bradenton and in 2004 she became Executive Director for the Community Coalition on Homelessness, now doing business as Turning Points. The organization provides services to individuals and families struggling with issues related to homelessness.
