

JAMES MCGOVERN
Neuropsychologist
Private Practice

Dr. McGovern is in private practice specializing in forensic and consulting neuropsychology. He became a licensed psychologist in 1989 after completing his doctoral work at the Florida Institute of Technology and his internship at the Veterans Administration Medical Center and Vanderbilt University Hospital in Nashville. He became board certified in clinical neuropsychology, which is the study of brain-behavior relationships, in 1998.

Dr. McGovern is on staff at both Blake Medical Center and Manatee Memorial Hospital. He has been qualified as an expert witness in both state and federal court. His focus nowadays is on providing neuropsychological input to the courts and helping develop Blake Medical Center's new residency program.

Dr. McGovern has been happily married for 36 years to his wife, Jennene, whom he met in South Korea where they both served there as Peace Corps volunteers. They have one daughter, Lauren, who currently lives and works in Santiago, Chile.
